

The Bush administration is already pro business and anti consumer. Don't weaken a strong consumer law by watering it down to satisfy the business backers of the President. Each state should be able to act in the best interests of its residents, and New Jersey is taking the lead in this regard with its Do Not Call Program.